THE LANGUAGE TOOLKIT: ENQUIRIES & QUESTIONS

Study Guide: Review this cheat sheet before making written or oral enquiries. Note the correct structure of Open and Closed questions.

Open-Ended Questions (Deep Discovery)	Closed-Ended Questions (Specific Confirmation)
Definition: Questions that cannot be answered with a simple 'yes' or 'no'. Used to encourage the speaker to provide more details, opinions, or explanation.	Definition: Questions that typically elicit a simple 'yes' or 'no' response. Used to confirm specific facts, control the conversation, and keep it highly focused.
Common Question Starters: • What... (What features does this multi-cooker have?) • How... (How do I use the double-cook function?) • Why... (Why is this model recommended for large families?)	Common Question Starters: • Is / Are... (Is this product currently in stock?) • Do / Does... (Does this cooker come with a warranty?) • Can / May... (Can I pay using credit card?) • Would... (Would you be able to deliver by Friday?)

Common Phrasing Corrections (DUE30022 Grammar Patrol):

Blunt / Grammatically Incorrect	Polite & Professional Alternative	Why It Matters
What is enquiries?	What is an enquiry? / What are enquiries?	Subject-verb agreement error. 'Enquiries' is plural; needs 'are'.
What is your problem?	How may I assist you with this issue?	Translating a blunt Malay complaint literal. Extremely rude in English.
Hey, give me price.	Could you please provide the price list?	Missing polite modals ('Could/Would') and standard request phrasing.
Your product is very bad.	I am disappointed with the product's performance.	Focuses on professional impact rather than aggressive personal attacks.

ACTIVITY 2: SPOT THE RUDE EMAIL (CRITIQUE & REWRITE)

Task: Read the aggressive complaint email below. Work in groups to identify three tone or structural issues, then rewrite the email in a professional manner in the box provided.

ACTIVITY 3: THE COMPLAINT REPAIR SHOP (ROLE-PLAY)

Instructions for Teacher: Print and distribute these scenario cards to pairs. One student plays the Upset Customer (must follow 'Be Polite' rules from Slide 32), the other plays the Customer Service Agent (must apply the 8-Step Resolution Loop).

SCENARIO A: The Melted Multi-Cooker Customer: You used your brand new Hitachi cooker. The steam basket melted during double cook, ruining your food. You are extremely upset but must remain polite (no swearing, explain clearly). Agent: An customer is complaining. Listen carefully without interrupting. Apologize and offer a free basket replacement.	SCENARIO B: The Silent Dead Battery Customer: Your EcoDry Smart Vacuum only runs for 5 minutes instead of the advertised 120 minutes. You want a full refund or a battery replacement. Agent: Recognize the technical failure. Do not argue. Admit the issue might be a faulty batch, and initiate the product collection process.
SCENARIO C: The Smashed Screen Projector Customer: Your AuraBeam Portable Projector arrived today, but the lens is completely cracked. You paid RM2,500 and need it for a critical corporate presentation tomorrow. Agent: Empathize deeply with the urgent presentation timeline. Arrange an immediate hand-delivered replacement or immediate office-pick-up option.	SCENARIO D: The Phantom Delivery Charge Customer: You bought an Apex Watch. Your invoice shows you were charged RM50 for express delivery, but the parcel arrived 5 days late via normal postage. Agent: Verify the delivery delay. Thank the customer for flagging this. Apologize and immediately process a refund of the RM50 delivery fee.

THE 8-STEP COMPLAINT RESOLUTION LOOP

Syllabus Reference Guide: In industry, successful companies use a circular loop to turn angry customers into loyal ones. Practice these 8 steps in your roleplays.

Step	Action Name	Practical Communication Application (What to Say/Do)
1	Provide Opportunity to Complain	Create an open channel. Welcome feedback and make it easy for customers to contact support.
2	Give Full & Undivided Attention	Focus completely on the customer. Maintain eye contact, nod, and take notes of key facts.
3	Listen Carefully Without Interrupting	Let the customer finish speaking. Do not jump in to defend your product or argue.
4	Apologize & Show Empathy	Acknowledge their distress first. Say: 'I am very sorry for the inconvenience this has caused you.'
5	Admit the Problem; Never Argue	Take responsibility. Never say 'It is your fault'. Keep a calm, professional tone of voice.
6	Ask Key Question: 'What Else?'	Ensure all concerns are surfaced. Say: 'Is there anything else that we need to address?'
7	Resolve Complaint Quickly	Take fast action. Swap the defective unit, issue a refund, or book a service technician immediately.
8	Thank the Customer	Express gratitude. Say: 'Thank you for bringing this to our attention so we can improve our service.'
